THE Enquirer writes itself down as being "byo-critical." It may as well have written it "typo-critical" or "typo-critical," it was all over a typographical error that occurred in THE DISPATCH. Undoubtedly "hypercritical" was meant.

Some complaints have been lodged with Marshal to the effect that many property owners, particularly on the outskirts of town, have and maintain barbed wire fences contrary to city ordinance. The ordinance provides a punishment by fining the sum of $50.00 for erecting or maintaining a barbed wire fence along or adjacent to any street within the platified portion of the city. If these barbed wire fences are not soon substituted with others it may be necessary for the marshal to enforce the ordinance.

THE city was enriched just $30.00 by the haul made by the police yesterday afternoon. Wilson and Warren, the two section foremen, left $5.00 each for their appearance and didn't appear in the case. When asked to make a manly talk acknowledging his wrong and begged the marshal's pardon for the abuse and trouble he had given him.

DOWN NIAGARA RAPIDS.

The Body of a Woman on a Cake of Ice Whirled Over American Falls.

A sensational story is told here by Master Edwin Whitney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Solon Whitney of this city. It is in effect that he saw at the house of his grandfather, Major Whitney, on Buffalo avenue, the body of a woman float past the rear of the house down through the rapids and over the falls.

The hour was about 8:30 in the morning. Master Whitney says that he saw the object on a cake of ice, and that there could be no mistake about it being a woman. She had on dark clothes, he thought, and part of her face was visible as she lay on the ice. He called the attention of the two painters at work on the veranda on the river side of the Whitney mansion, and they also thought it was a body.

The painters alluded to are John O'Brien and Harry Collier. Both substantiated the boy's story. Mr. O'Brien said:

"Our attention was called to the river by a flock of ducks flying over. Young Whitney and myself saw the object on the ice coming down the river and at first thought it was a log. As it came nearer we saw that it was a human being, and when still closer that it was a woman. Mr. Collier's attention was called to it, and he also thought it was a woman. The cake of ice with the body passed probably but 50 feet from the shore down into the rapids. The body was of good size and appeared to be enveloped in a long steel gray cloak which reached nearly to the feet. The woman was lying extended, and there could be no mistake as to it being a woman."

The three watchers followed the object as far as the rapids, where the ice and its burden were tossed about and went over the American falls. It doubtless passed under the ice bridge and may never be found.—Niagara Special to New York World.

The title built was formerly very honorable, and the official was vested with many important powers.

This Dog Knew Too Much.

Jack, an Irish setter whose home is in Maryland, has the regular duty of bringing the mail from the letter box at the gate, the house standing well back from the road. His family will back from the road a two weeks' visit to New York and proposed sending Jack to the country during their absence. Jack's wishes in the matter were not consulted, and he was not invited to take part in the discussion, but that he listened was proved by his actions. It was decided to start on a Tuesday evening, provided a letter were received by the morning's mail. It did not come, however, nor in the afternoon, when Jack brought up a whole batch, and to his satisfaction no one left home. Several days passed. Then a telegram came inquiring what was the matter. An exchange of letters disclosed the fact that the promised letter was written and should have been received when expected. A search, into which Jack was impressed, much against his will, discovered the missing letter hidden in a hencoop, and it bore unmistakable evidence that Jack had placed it there.

Now, it is not to be supposed that Jack could read or distinguish handwriting, so his keen nose must have recognized the writer, who was a frequent visitor, of whom he was very fond, but only from listening to the talk could he have connected that person with the plans for departure. This is the only instance of Jack's ever betraying a trust, but the sagacity evinced was so great that confidence in him was increased instead of lessened by it.—Demorest's Magazine.

Discussion:—Resolved that certain parts of the grammar now in use properly belong to a course of secondary instruction.

Alternative.—South of Provo, Negative.—North of Provo, Judges.—Provo Teachers.

LANGUAGE.

Third and fourth grades.

Discussion:—A lack of oral expression on the part of the average pupil is due to the following causes:

1. Ideas are sacrificed and words extolled.

2. Too much memorizing and repeating the words of the book.

3. Too much practice in written expression.

4. Improper and untimely criticism.

5. Inefficiency of the teacher.

LANGUAGE.

First and second grades.

Questions:—1. How should an object be presented before a class of primary pupils? Give steps. Why?

2. What ideas do you wish to develop through the presentation of the subjects—chalk, glass, rubber? Be specific.

3. What facilities are in prominent activity during a systematic object lesson recitation? Prove.

4. Illustrate your method of teaching the relation of the parts of an object to each other and to the whole.
